Class History

Four years ago, we, the Class of 1928, entered the University with hopes and ambitions for greater achievement. Our class represented the largest number of Freshmen ever enrolled in the history of our beloved University. Moreover, our worth quite matched up with our numbers, for we immediately made things hum in the schools. Every branch of school activity found members of our class in the lead—in dramatics, football, basketball, and track. We were there with the goods and we delivered whenever we were called upon. Good leadership means greater achievement; so for our officers that first year of college life, we picked E. R. Henderson for president; Price Starks for vice-president; Ruth Haynes for secretary, and Billy Keller for treasurer.

We were the first Sophomore class on our present campus, and we certainly made it hot for those poor Freshmen. We inoculated into our school 'a spirit' which had never before existed. Again the members of our class were the leaders in all branches of activities. We were delighted with our new campus and the almost sudden growth of our institution. We found ourselves surrounded by new opportunities for expansion and we took advantage of them for the good of our class and of our University. In that year of our existence we found a very capable leader in the person of Price Starks, whom we chose as our president.

Then came our Junior year, and our Junior Prom, which proved to be the greatest thing ever attempted by a class of the University. It was a great year for us as a class, but the death of our beloved president darkened things for us somehow. We saw a complete change in the administration of our University. We were sorely tried by the events of adjustment to a new way of doing things, but we came out of the fight with our heads up and our good record upheld. Our officers for our Junior year were entirely capable. William Keller was our president; Leslie Hauger, our vice-president; Helen Anderson, our secretary; Ruth Robinson, our treasurer, and Clarence Ford, our sergeant-at-arms.

We have witnessed the passing of four years of college life, in which we have done our duty to ourselves and to our school. We have witnessed the changes of these years with pride. We are entirely proud of our school, and we are deeply indebted to our faculty. We came into the University with a class of over four hundred; our class now numbers over seventy. We are entirely proud to have as our officers men and women who have proved themselves worthy in every line of endeavor. Our officers are: Donald Haydon, president; Norvin Green, vice-president; Alice Bowie Stickel, secretary; Mary Hubbard, treasurer; Fred Karem, sergeant-at-arms, and Clarence Ford, historian.

History of the School of Medicine

The School of Medicine of the University of Louisville, the only medical school in the State of Kentucky, is the second oldest medical school now in existence west of the Alleghenies. The University was founded in 1837 by a decree of the City Council, and at the same time the tract of land comprising the town block between Eighth and Ninth Streets, extending south from Chestnut, was granted to the institution. The corporation was chartered by an act of the Legislature of Kentucky in 1847. A special subsidy of $50,000 was allowed for construction.

By the coalition in 1908 of the schools of medicine of Louisville, embracing the Medical Department of the University of Louisville, organized in 1837, the Kentucky School of Medicine, 1850, the Louisville Medical College, 1869, the Hospital College of Medicine, 1873, and the Medical Department of the Kentucky University (now Transylvania College), 1898, new property, greater prestige, and wider influence were added to the Medical Department of the University of Louisville, thus making it a strong one of its class, and promising for the future the maintenance of increasingly higher standards to satisfy increasing requirements.

The faculty has been strengthened recently by the addition of several highly trained and experienced teachers in the medical sciences and by salaried teachers of medicine and surgery. Considerable additional laboratory equipment for research and teaching has been provided to afford opportunity for the application of medical sciences in a way to conform to modern methods of medical instruction. The clinical members of the faculty, who act as voluntary teachers, are devoted to their work and greatly strengthen the faculty.

Class History

In the fall of 1924, the University of Louisville School of Dentistry gave birth to a new child, which, according to custom, was known as Freshman. Unlike previous children, this baby was so small as to be almost unnoticeable—so small, in fact, that it was made the subject of more than the ordinary amount of ridicule by its older brothers. These the infant eyed with what bordered on the proper amount of respect. If the customary awe was just a shade forced, it could only be attributed to the precociousness of the youngster, due, perhaps, to its pre-natal feeding, which consisted chiefly of one year of the College of Arts and Sciences.

During the first few weeks of its life, much of its time was spent in regarding its five different parts, especially that limb which it promptly labeled "the skirt." Due to its smallness, it developed quite early the habit of easily losing itself and of causing those to whom its care was assigned much trouble in keeping it where it could always be found when wanted. Although it was at times somewhat difficult for its teachers to learn whether it was at the Dental School, the Medical School, or on the road between these two, or even on the front seat of a Ford, they soon found that their baby, despite its size, was one of which they need not be ashamed. This fact was fully established after it passed safely through the attack of anatomy to which it was subjected. It must be admitted that though its elders were soon convinced that it was quite strong mentally, they watched its physical development with anxiety. This anxiety was increased to real concern when, toward the middle of the year, it had lost two-fifths of its original size. However, the remaining three members held their own, and even managed to flourish under the care of the instructors. Thus, at the end of its first year it had managed to secure a place all of its own in the family of the Dental School.

By the beginning of its second year, it had been seen that the baby was indeed extraordinary. It had grown remarkably, and instead of being somewhat shy because of its size, the class became proud of the fact that it could boast of six additional members, making a total of nine. So it was that with even greater ability than it had shown before, it began its second year. This was marked by the convention of the A. D. A., to which the class aspired to belong. It began to apply itself to intense study, but it also learned that it had become a valuable part of the school and began taking part in student activities. Though it was at times apt to apply itself to things others than studies, by the end of the year, it had proved itself worthy of the name, Junior.

The most difficult years of the class's life were over. The Junior year, the year that had been looked forward to with much anticipation and some trembling, was begun. The class, increased now to eleven members, was admitted to the Infirmary—all the previous effort seemed worthwhile after all. It began to get more pleasure out of its work; knowledge did not come quite so hard. And yet, everything was not easy. There was the first patient to be handled, with the feeling that the experienced ones were watching and snickering over the mistakes made; a new routine had to be learned; the personalities of the new instructors to know, but the class was told that great things were expected of it; that it had the ability to make of itself a remarkable class, so with this inspiration it determined not to fall down on its job. Aside from its regular duties, it began to take an active interest in student life; it became more closely associated with other departments of the university. This was due to the influence of the school's new dean, Dr. O'Rourke, whose inspiration and guiding hand have been of an aid to the class that cannot be estimated. As a result of this contact with other departments, one of the members of the class was made chairman of the Junior Prom, the second affair of its kind to be attempted by the students.

With a well-spent youth behind it, and boasting a rollcall of thirteen names, the class came into its fourth, its Senior year, with its treasured associations, with the humbling thought that after all there was much that it could have done that it left undone, that instead of "finishing," it was just obtaining a suitable preparation for a real beginning of work and service. It had begun to realize that by no list of material achievements could a history be written, nor by these achievements the real worth of the class be estimated. Perhaps its greatest contribution throughout the four years has been its deepest gratitude to its school and to its dean.

LEX NON COGIT AD IMPOSSIBILIA. And so thought our learned professors. They carried us over TORTUOUS paths without DAMNUM to our souls; they pushed us into the depths of SALES without stoppage IN TRANSITU. But with much pleading we demanded the right to exercise our own freewill, whereby they were to subrogate their volition to ours. With this positive requisition they refused to comply. Strenuously our dear pedagogues objected because of the code among them. They said it was contrary to public service to let us sleep on our rights; that we should find ourselves in a bed, according to the fact that VIGILANTIBUS NON DORMIENTIBUS AEQUITAS SUBVENIT. Certainly they taxed our minds. But we developed an immunity to such taxation. Anyway, here we are!

The Class of 1928

" 'Tis sweet to win, no matter how, one's laurels,
By blood or ink; 'tis sweet to put an end
To strife; 'tis sometimes sweet to have our quarrels,
Particularly with a tiresome friend;
Sweet is old wine in bottles, ale in barrels;
Dear is the helpless creature we defend
Against the world; and dear the SCHOOLBOY SPOT
We ne'er forget, though there we are forgot."

Class History

As many individual pieces of metal which serve no unified purpose can be reshaped and placed to form a sturdy and useful structure, so this body, the first graduating class of the Speed Scientific School, has gathered from various sources, has learned to work in unity, and has become a body which, individually or collectively, can perform some useful function. The class has evolved from a loosely-connected membership of four men, to a well-organized class of ten men, united in good fellowship.

Everyone connected with the College of Liberal Arts when it was located on Broadway, remembers the old drawing building commonly termed "the barn," and the original members of the class: Borgman, Carter, Fields, and Porter, who welcomed each other each afternoon with a neatly balanced cup of water. With the Spring of 1924 came the addition of two new members to the class, Mr. Wright and Mr. Trautwein, who left Alabama Polytechnic Institute to attend the University of Louisville. On November 11, 1924, the Speed Scientific Society was organized; and in addition to the men named above, M. Ballwey, Levey, Russell, and Schnur were admitted as charter members.

When the Speed Scientific School opened in 1925, M. Fields, Porter, Borgman, Carter, Wright, and Trautwein entered as sophomores, while M. Schnur, Levey, Russell, and Ballwey, who lacked the necessary credits to be listed as such, entered as "semi-sophomores." With a great amount of effort, these latter were able to overcome their deficiency of credits, and in 1926 were admitted to the class as full-fledged members.

In the fall of 1926, the following class officers were elected: M. O. Porter, president; C. E. Russell, vice-president; Bernard Levey, secretary; Clarence Wright, treasurer, and John Ballwey, Jr., sergeant-at-arms. When the class received Room 216 as the Junior Room, the final step in the evolution of the class was effected. The new and old members of the class began to work in such a fashion that the class functioned as a unit. The class established a precedent of an annual Junior-Freshman feed for the purpose of acquainting the freshmen with the school and the upper classmen. The class basketball team wrested the championship of the Speed School from the sophomores in the spring of 1927.

The election in 1927 left the class destiny in the hands of: Clarence Wright, president; John Ballwey, Jr., vice-president; Raymond Schnur, secretary, and Bernard Levey, treasurer. The class was instrumental in the organization of the student branches of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

It naturally fell to the lot of the class of 1928, the pioneer class, to establish precedents by which the ensuing classes would be guided. With the knowledge of the past record of the class, it is safe to assume that the good name of the school is secure with the members of its first graduating class, and that establishment of school prestige is in willing and capable hands.

ATHLETICS

Varsity Athletics

From the time of publication of the 1927 Thoroughbred to the time of publication of the 1928 Thoroughbred, it has been the good fortune of the University of Louisville, through the able and proficient coaching of Tom King, to have produced four Kentucky State Championship Teams. The state titles of track, baseball, tennis, and basketball, in the order named, rest on the heads of the various Louisville representatives.

This is a most unusual record, and speaks well of the ability of Tom King to impart his knowledge to his pupils. It is ventured that such a record has never before been equalled in Kentucky. It is all the more impressive a record when the fact is considered that in football, the fifth activity participated in by Louisville, there is no champion. It is anybody's title.

From all present indications it is reasonable to presume that this record will be upheld. The four major teams remain practically intact, and of course there is always new incoming material. 1928-1929 should be another banner year.

With the closing of the first half of the year 1928, the University of Louisville loses several unusual athletes. Among them are Weber, Koster, Miller, Mayhall, Ford, and Blackerby.

Special mention should be made of the ability of Eddie Weber and Fred Koster, two of the most outstanding athletes the South has ever produced. Eddie Weber has been a power for four years. He has won letters in basketball, baseball, cross-country, golf, and tennis. When it is considered that he weighs only 140 pounds, and that compared to many of his adversaries, he has been a mere midget, his record is all the more remarkable. In Fred Koster, the school points to its second four-letter man. Although Fred is good in everything, and there is no specialty with him, his most impressive feat was in gaining national recognition as the leading point-scorer of the country in football in 1926. He scored 124 points that year.

In Blackerby, Ford, Mayhall, and Miller, there passes from active competition four of the greatest battlers in the history of the University of Louisville. These men are famous throughout the state for the manner in which they engaged in clean, hard athletic competition. They asked no quarter and gave no quarter; their sole purpose was to make history for the University of Louisville.

Varsity Football

While the 1927 University of Louisville football season cannot be termed a howling success, as four of the eight games played were lost, neither can it be called a complete failure, for on the occasion on which the Cardinals really played the game according to their ability, they rose to mighty heights and smashed the Colonels of Centre College under a 40 to 7 avalanche for Louisville's first defeat of Centre since the days before the famous "Praying Colonels" were the talk of the country, around 1920 and 1923.

The 1927 Cardinal eleven was distinctly an off-and-on team, playing great football one week and slumping off to the lowest depths the next. Had it not been for the ineligibility of some fifteen or more athletes, and also the forced absence of Koster and Blackerby during the several of the games, this condition would not have existed. Another factor, too, was the quality of the opposition, which has grown higher year by year during the past few football seasons. Davis and Elkins and Centenary are good examples of this.

On a percentage basis alone the season was a failure. But by defeating Centre, this seasonal failure was turned into a huge success.

Transylvania—The 1927 season opened in Louisville with Transylvania College as the opponent. The game was similar to most opening games, and the Cardinals won by the not over-impressive score of 25 to 6. It was noted, however, that Tom King had developed a very clever passing attack, especially for so early a stage in the season. Blackerby, Koster, and Drewry in the the backfield, and Robertson, Atkinson, and Fish back in the line, were the stars of the tilt.

Another feature of the game was the appearance of five new men: "Chink" Wetherby and Kenneth Browne at ends, McDonald and Hilton Brown in the backfield, and Connor Brown at center. These were destined to become the "finds" of 1927.

Murray State Normal—Murray Normal, a new and unheralded foe, came to Louisville on the following Saturday, with a heavy and well-coached team, for the sole purpose of defeating the Louisville team. And they came perilously close to attaining their object, as the final score was 14 to 0, in favor of the University.

Had not Drewry and Williams been playing their best that day, the score might not have been even that large. Drewry to Williams was the order, and it simply strengthened the notion that Tom King had a very deceptive passing attack to rely upon when necessary.

Marshall College—The Marshall game was the worst disaster of the entire season. It was the first contest on foreign territory for the 1927 team. The Cardinals invaded Huntington, W. Va., with the knowledge that they had beaten the Big Green team the year before by a score of 27 to 3, and that was probably their undoing.

It was Marshall's Homecoming Day, and they were naturally primed for the fight. The result was that a band of greatly surprised and badly beaten Cardinal warriors found themselves at the short end of a 37 to 6 score when the game was over. This is as good an example as one could wish to find of what over-confidence will do. The whole Louisville team was "off," and the lone star on a dark horizon was the playing of Horace Roth at guard.

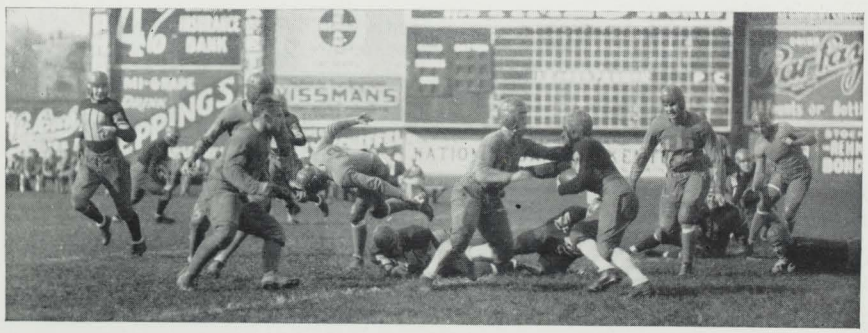

Centre—The Marshall game was evidently the darkness that precedes the dawn, for at the end of another week, the Cardinals at last brought down to earth, and this time pointed for their opponent, rose to their greatest heights and smashed through the Centre team to a glorious victory by the score of 40 to 7.

The team played as though inspired. Although it would be, indeed, a most difficult task to choose the stars of the game, the work of Robertson and Daugherty in the line, and that of Blackerby, Koster, and McDonald in the backfield, is especially deserving of some extra comment.

It was a great victory for Louisville, more so because it was the first football victory over Centre College in many, many years. By defeating Centre, the University of Louisville definitely established itself as a power in Kentucky. It was the finishing touch which has been missing all these years.

Western State Normal—Playing at Bowling Green the following Saturday, the Louisville team demonstrated how possible it is for a team to slump badly in a single week. The mighty machine that had crushed Centre was certainly not functioning against Western Normal. The result was a 7 to 6 score in favor of the opposition.

It was merely a repetition of the Marshall game. In such a game, and under such conditions, there are no stars. Louisville had again made Homecoming Day a success in foreign territory, and they were tired of such celebrations. Coach Diddle had primed his men to the limit to beat Louisville, while the Kingmen were in the throes of the reaction that inevitably follows a hard test. The Cards, while manifestly the better team, could never get going consistently.

Eastern State Normal—The opposition next met was Eastern Normal. The game was played at Richmond, and was another Homecoming affair. Louisville managed to win by a 21 to 13 count.

"Chink" Wetherby was the outstanding man in an otherwise dull and rather uninteresting contest.

Davis and Elkins—The Scarlet Hurricane from Elkins, W. Va., defeated the University of Louisville the succeeding Saturday by the score of 32 to 0.

Davis and Elkins, having previously taken on Army, Georgetown, and Navy, on successive Saturdays, was undoubtedly the best team seen in Louisville within the past five years. May it be said to the credit of Louisville, they had a tough time of it, for after marking up 32 points in the first half, they were held scoreless in the second.

Centenary—The last game of the season was played on Thanksgiving Day in Shreveport, La. It resulted in the worst defeat the Cardinals have suffered in years, the score being 59 to 2. The only comforting feature of the entire trip was the playing of Don Dotson and "Big" Robertson. These two men won the respect of the Centenary football team and the hearts and confidence of all Shreveport by their absolute refusal to know when they were beaten.

Varsity Basketball

Last February, the basketball team of the University of Louisville closed a successful season by winning the state championship, a title which they have never before held. The team suffered only one defeat from Kentucky rivals. This was in a game with Georgetown. However, they were avenged when they conquered Georgetown in the finals of the state tournament. Had it not been for the brilliant playing of Eddie Weber, who made 22 points in that last game, the U. of L. boys might not have been so successful.

In basketball, there was no elected captain. Coach King appointed the captain for each game, and the result was most gratifying. The seasonal playing of the entire team was of a most pleasing nature.

George Caspari, student manager of several years' standing, is to be congratulated for his admirable efforts. He played no small part in making the success of the team.

Kentucky Champions of Track, 1927

VARSITY TRACK

Upsetting all previous predictions and surprising everybody in Kentucky except themselves, a small band of nine Cardinal track and field representatives went to Danville on the 20th of May, 1927, to compete in the Kentucky Intercollegiate Track and Field Meet, and came home the same night with the championship of the State, earned by one of the most consistent showings ever made by a representative track team.

To be exact, the Cardinal and Black trackmen scored 49 points to U. of Kentucky's 37½, Centre's 26½, and Berea's 22½. The Louisville team was probably one of the best balanced teams ever produced in the South. At least one member of the squad won points in every event on the program.

Uncas Miller, captain, was the high-point man of the meet with 11¾ points, but it would be unfair to pick an outstanding star. The work of every man was deserving of the highest praise in winning this first championship of the year.

Letters were awarded to:

Emil Pragoff, Jr.,
Student Manager

Pragoff and his assistant, Carl Ousley, deserve a great deal of credit for the admirable way they performed their duties. A mere letter is not sufficient recognition for the services rendered by any competent student manager.

Champions of Kentucky, 1927

VARSITY BASEBALL

The University of Louisville won her second major Kentucky athletic championship of the year last spring when Tom King's battling baseball nine swept through the season with only one defeat, to annex the Kentucky intercollegiate championship.

The Cardinal team was probably the best ever to represent the University of Louisville and was one of the best college teams in the country. With batters such as Fred Koster and "Bo" Euller to drive in runs, the Cardinals scored freely on every opponent and their pitchers were not required to accomplish marvels of tight hurling to turn-in victories.

In winning the State title, the team defeated at least once Centre, U. of Kentucky, Western Normal, Eastern Normal, Georgetown, and Kentucky Wesleyan, besides trouncing Tennessee, 8 to 7, in the only tilt of the season between the two teams. The only game lost was to the University of Kentucky, but as the Cards had previously beaten the Wildcats by a much larger score and had a far better record against other Kentucky opponents, they were unanimously elected champions at the end of the season.

An unusual feature of the season was that both regular pitchers, Hartfield and Kelley, finished every game which they started.

The Freshman Football Team

FRESHMAN ATHLETICS

The year 1927-1928 marked the introduction of a new freshman coach in the appearance of Fred Lambert, a graduate of Mississippi College. This man, while studying at Mississippi, made a name for himself by winning four college letters in four major sports: football, basketball, baseball, and track. If results may be used as criterion, he is equally capable in transmitting that which he has learned, as he has been in learning it.

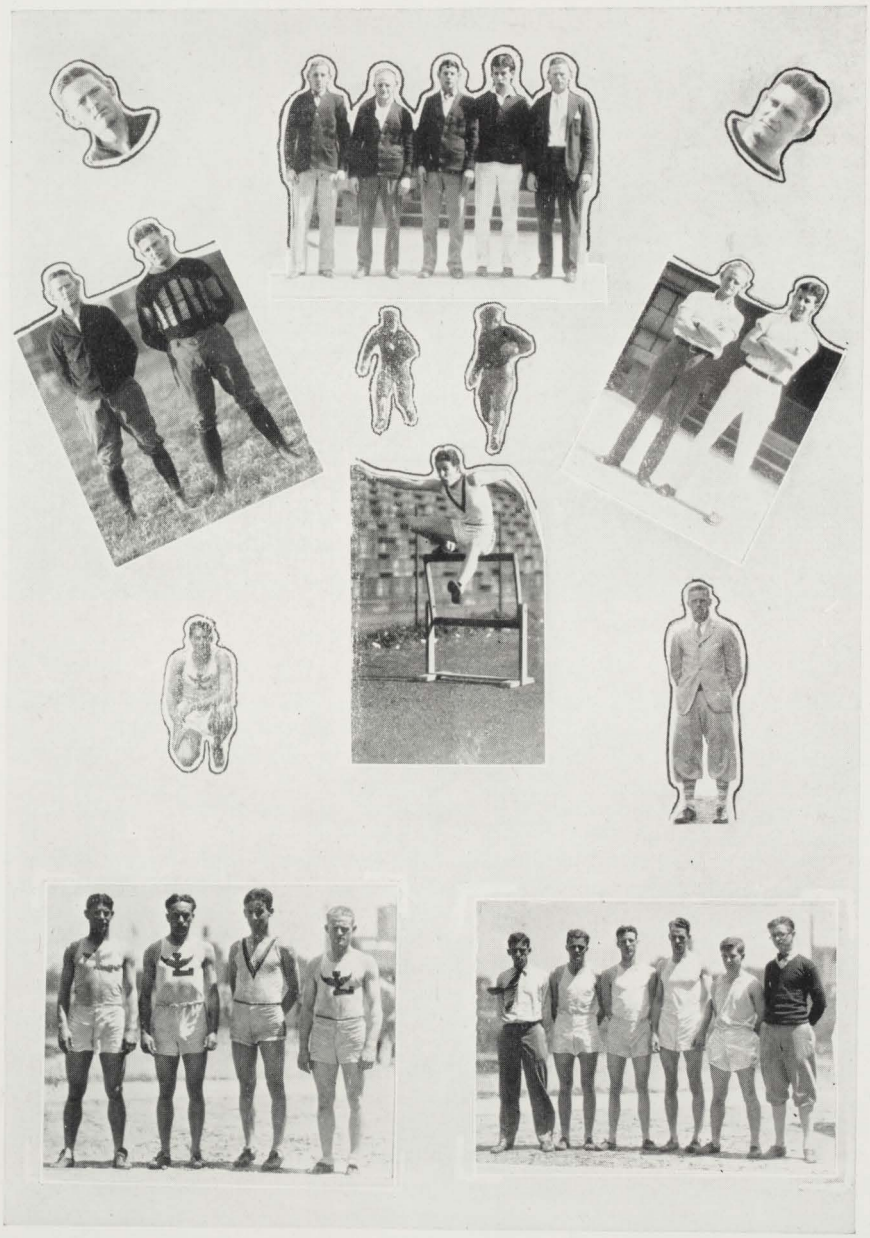

While the freshman football team was somewhat like the varsity in winning and losing, there were some real varsity prospects produced, and that is the object of freshman athletics. Roy Tweedy, captain, Anson and "Julius Caesar" Burlingame, Bain, Dave Earl, and other less brilliant players on the freshman squad, should prove of real value to Tom King when he starts the building of his 1928 varsity machine.

The freshman basketball team showed that Duffy and Chappell should stand a good chance of becoming regulars on the varsity team next year.

In track the freshman team landed third at the State meet, but as in football, the team result is immaterial. With such likely prospects as Russell, Cates, Hall, and Wesley to help the varsity this spring, the season might be called a success.

FRESHMAN MANAGERS

Dawson Attkisson was the freshman football manager. He is thanked for his efforts and congratulated for his effective handling of the team. He was ably assisted by Jack Hopkins, who was also manager of freshman basketball. Carl Ousley was the manager of freshman track in 1927. He, too, is entitled to much praise.

TENNIS—1927

Louisville captured her third intercollegiate State championship of the year when the U. of L. tennis team walked away with the Kentucky title by defeating all opposition last spring. The team was composed of Eddie Weber, former State champion; Ed Langan, Clarence Judah, and George Imorde. The University of Kentucky and Georgetown College were trampled under foot in the march to the championship.

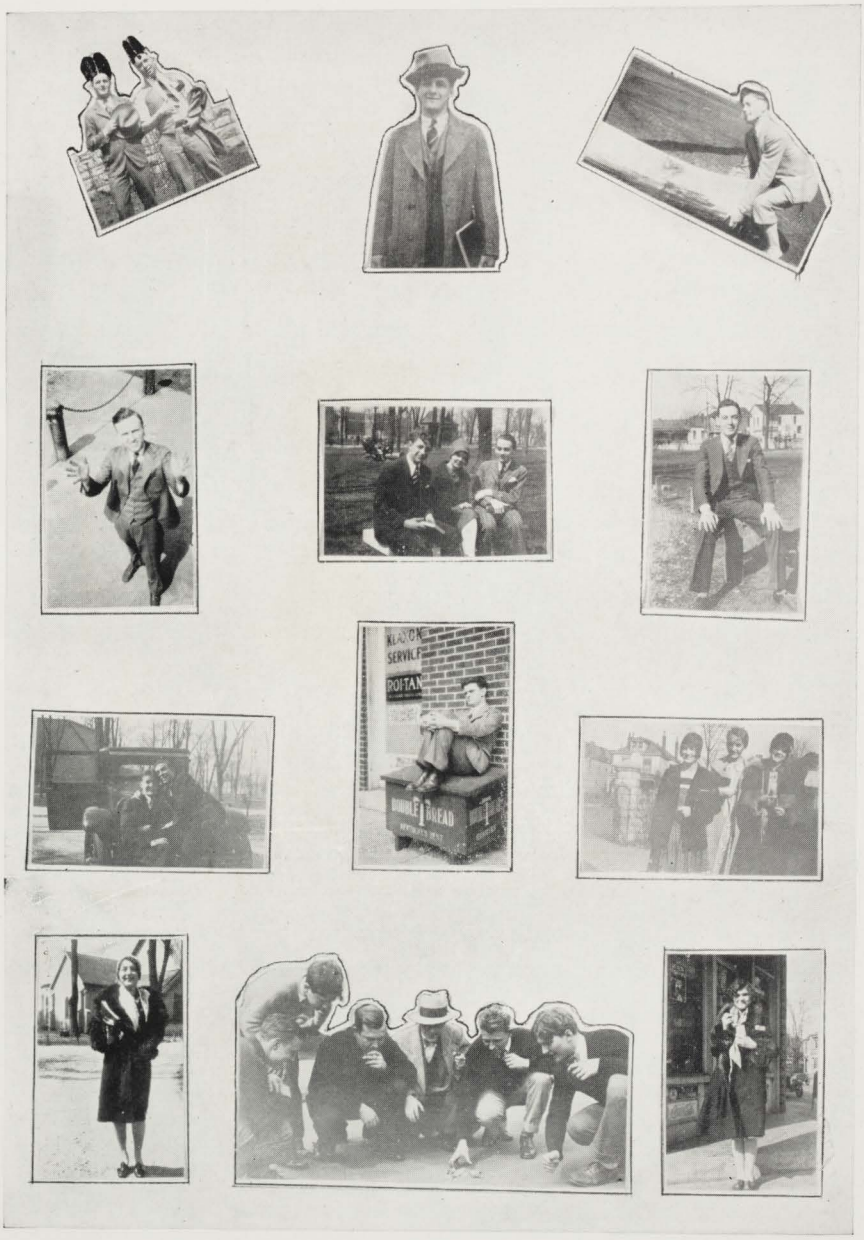

1928

The 1928 tennis season should be the most prosperous in the history of the University of Louisville. The entire 1927 team, with the exception of Clarence Judah, is back, and several new players, such as Bob Hall, Julian DePree, and Charley Spencer, have come up from the freshman ranks to bolster up the team.

TRACK—1928

From early season indications, the 1928 track team should surpass even the glorious record made by the 1927 team. The returning letter-men are Uncas Miller, Fred Koster, Stanley Ousley, Harvey Mayhall, Charles Williams, and Dick Taylor from the 1927 team. With Buddy Hosch and several other members of last year's squad who missed their letters by a point or two, there are also some promising freshman products, the most outstanding of whom are Russell, Hall, Cates, Wesley, and Graham.

Carl Ousley is the 1928 student manager. He has been working all winter with his schedule and promises to be just as effective a manager as was Pragoff.

History of the Junior Prom

The Junior year, if called a season, would most assuredly be called Springtime. It is a happy time—a colorful year. That is why we have the Prom. The gay life of the Juniors could find no more joyful expression than in the scene where the gay ones promenade before admiring friends.

It was not until 1926 that we had a Prom. The Juniors of the Liberal Arts College, filled with the added zeal arising from their new campus, launched the first U. of L. Junior Prom. They elected M. O. Porter, Jr., as their chairman. The Prom was held at the Brown Hotel with Genevieve Miller as the queen. "The Kentuckians" came down from Lexington to furnish the music. The affair was such a success that the Juniors felt amply repaid for their experiment.

Building upon the prestige established by the first Prom, the following Junior class gave the second Prom. The Junior classes of all five departments co-operated in this gala occasion. "Chick" Robinson was chairman, with Alberta Knoop as his queen. The Kosair Hotel was the scene of real merriment and the Kentucky Night-Hawks fell into the Junior spirit with their music.

Now we have just had our third Prom. With the music still soothing our breasts, we wish we could always be college students and go to Proms. The Brown Hotel—"The Cardinals" playing—Fred Koster and his queen, Dora Allen, leading the promenade, will always be a vivid picture.

As we leave the portals of the U. of L., we leave with the delightful memory of three great Proms, and with the assurance that the U. of L. is a real university —even as to its Proms.

Keys, honorary sophomore fraternity, was installed in the University of Louisville on March 20th, 1926, by the Kentucky Alpha Chapter of Kentucky State University.

The criterion of this fraternity is integrity, scholarship, and active interest in college life. Its purpose is to set a standard of scholastic endeavor in the university, and to establish relationship between the different fraternities. It is, therefore, composed of the most outstanding men in the sophomore class.

Phi Phi Sigma

Literary Society

The Phi Phi Sigma Society was organized by Dr. Austin R. Middleton, September, 1926. An appreciation of literary work and ability to do it are signs manual of the cultured person. The activities of a literary society are greatly conducive to these ends and are constantly kept in view in the programs of Phi Phi Sigma. Members of the University are urged to secure for themselves the advantages of active participation in literary expression by enrolling in Phi Phi Sigma.

The Cardinals have greatly increased their popularity on the campus after a year of musical activity. They have furnished delightful music for the Junior Prom, the Players' productions, and for the majority of the other university social affairs.

Five plays, each as unlike the other as possible, all heretofore never presented in Louisville, were presented for the fourteenth season; the program amply making good Mr. Martin's promise that the fourteenth season would be even more impressive than the last season.

The season opened on October 21, 1927, with "Mrs. Partridge Presents," by Mary Kennedy and Ruth Hawthorne. Elizabeth Trawick made her debut with the players as Mrs. Partridge. The cast was generously sprinkled with novices. Those who appeared with the players for the first time were Courtenay Tyler, Mildred Potter, Elizabeth Attkisson, Burton Blackwell, Ruth Robinson, Louise Smart, James S. Pirtle and Alfred Ritchie.

"Rolling Stones," by Edgar Selwyn, was the second production. It was given its Louisville premier on December 9 and was repeated on Saturday afternoon and evening, December 10. Seven of the seventeen in the cast made their first appearances in any play in this comedy in which Tom Ford, as Dave Fulton, easily won first honors. The new players were Jean Newberger, Irene Gardner, Elliott Lee Maddox, Alice Parke, Nectar Kazanjian, Tom Ford, and Maddox Parmalee.

For his next production, Boyd Martin selected "Paolo and Francesca," by Stephen Phillips, and thereby proposed to duplicate the success of "Romeo and Juliet" of the last season. He did not have Rollo Wayne design the scenery but did it himself, and surprised the critics, who discovered that the production, while naturally not as pretentious as "Romeo and Juliet," was just as lovely. Seven stage pictures, each a revelation of beauty, greeted the eyes of the spectators. The last act setting alone "stopped the show," and the applause was even greater than that which greeted any scene in "Romeo and Juliet."

Scene from "The Romantic Young Lady"

Scene from "Children of the Moon"

"Paolo and Francesco" was the most pretentious production of the year. It was given for four performances, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, with a matinee Saturday, February 16, 17, and 18, and it was a financial success as well as an artistic triumph. Ed Goodin as Giovanni, Burton Blackwell as Paolo, Margaret Shireman as Francesca, Betty Wooden as Lucrezia, and Thelma Dolan as Blind Angela, with greater opportunities than the others in the long cast of sixty-five players, made the greatest hits.

Many new players were again introduced in "The Romantic Young Lady," Sierra's comedy, in which Margaret Ford played the title role. "The Romantic Young Lady" was given March 13 and 14, with matinee on the 14th. Florence Jones, Betty Hawes, Fred Koster, Wilma Saults, Helen Nold, Walter Haynes, Jere Shaw, Norman Wright, Elliott Maddox, and Robert Gatenbee. Of these, only Koster, Shaw, Wright, Maddox, and Gatenbee had ever appeared before.

The final play of the season was Elizabeth Baker's English tragi-comedy of futility, "Chains," which was presented May 18 and 19. Mr. Martin picked a group of more experienced players, some of whom will never appear again with the University Players. The cast included Anna May Kirn, Burton Blackwell, W. N. McKamy, Billy Keller, Frances Mann, Fred Karem, and M. O. Porter.

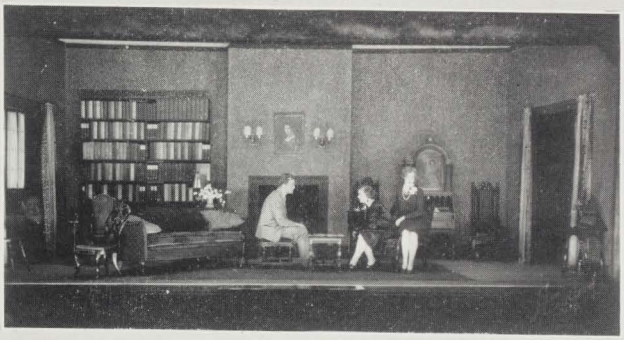

Too much credit cannot be given the back-stage crew of the season of 1927-1928. Fred Karem, stage manager, and Jere Shaw and Ed Goodin, his assistants, worked indefatigably on scenery designed by Mr. Martin, Marguerite Dalton, Mr. Shaw, Mr. Maddox, and Mr. Goodin. They also worked equally as industriously for the Alumni Players, who could not have functioned without their aid. Mr. Blackwell, aside from playing three major roles, was chief electrician, and John Kiesel was his assistant. Miss Trawick was the wardrobe mistress and Miss Olive, the property mistress.

The work of the University of Louisville Players, if possible, was even greater for the fourteenth season than for any previous one. There was a joyous co-operation given the director, whose enthusiasm and inspiration carried the players over many difficult tasks. Those who were not actively engaged in production work gathered the audience so that the players produced before audiences that practically filled the Playhouse at each performance.

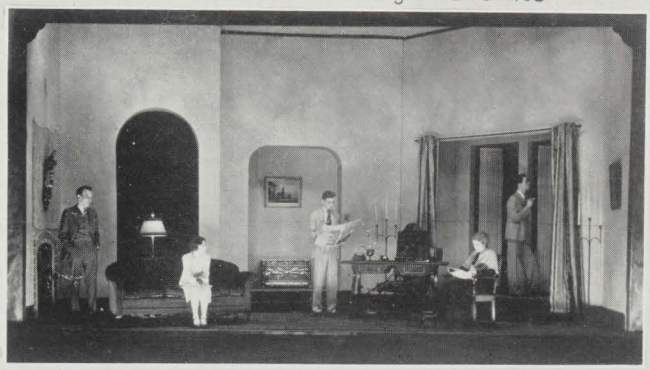

Next October the University of Louisville Players will open their fifteenth season. It is, therefore, their Crystal Anniversary, and Mr. Martin promises that it will be fittingly celebrated. Plans are now under way for a gigantic spectacle that should eclipse any former production in the Playhouse.

Scene from "Rolling Stones"

Scene from "Mrs. Partridge Presents"

Scene from "The Romantic Young Lady"

In addition to the public work done by the University of Louisville Players for 1927-1928, they staged several plays written by Mr. Martin's English 50 and 51 class, and many had opportunity for practice in producing plays without the help of the director. That they were well instructed was evident from the general effectiveness of the productions as a whole.

During the season of 1927-1928 the University of Louisville Players also staged "Gammer Gurton's Needle," which was edited by Mr. Martin for the purpose, and presented before the Modern Language Association, which met in convention at Louisville. The audience that greeted the play filled the Playhouse and was probably the most intellectual audience before which the players have ever appeared.

Articles about the U. of L. Players appeared this past season in Theatre Arts, the Theatre Magazine, the Courier-Journal, the Herald-Post, and the Louisville Times, and the Associated Press sent out a feature about them.

The Players brought Prof. Frederick Koch, founder of the Carolina Playmakers, to Louisville for a lecture, and Clayton Hamilton was also their guest for a talk.

No story of the U. of L. Players' activities for the season of 1927-1928 would be complete without a special word of recognition to Helen Anderson, the president. Miss Anderson was elected vice-president for 1927-1928, upon the resignation of Leslie Hauger, who moved to Dallas, Tex., where he immediately became art director of the Little Theatre. Miss Anderson was elected to fill the vacancy. She worked unselfishly for the Players, presided at every Saturday afternoon meeting, and was present at each production, to which she gave generously of her time and labor, willingly and cheerfully. Miss Anderson should have been a great inspiration to the students, who saw in her an example of the traditional loyalty of a member of the University of Louisville Players to the organization.

No wonder Director Boyd Martin recommended her for the Lion's Club prize for dramatics for the past season. The prize is the interest on $1000 worth of bonds held in trust by the Board of Trustees for the University of Louisville Players, in recognition of Boyd Martin's service to dramatics in the college.

The next season is being anxiously awaited by all who have patronized the plays in the Playhouse. Five plays, as is customary, will be presented. That the Players will continue their advancement and beat their past records for achievement no one who has watched with what keen interest the director takes a manuscript and makes it come to life before audiences doubts.

The Alumni Association of the University of Louisville

For nearly a year and a half there has been in existence an organization known as the Alumni Association of the University of Louisville. In fact, on March 15, 1927, this organization drew its first breath of life and in the short interval since that time, has grown into a well-developed, widely-reaching organization that serves as conscientiously and thoroughly as possible the 8,000 graduates of the University of Louisville, scattered throughout every State in the Union and representing the Schools of Medicine, Law, Dentistry, and the College of Liberal Arts.

It is the aim of this organization to keep alive and further the ideals inculcated in the university; to strengthen and add to the ties that bind the alumni to each other and thus to the university; and keep the university a creative force in the daily existence of those who started their careers on the campus.

As a first step toward realizing this goal, a full-time secretary with offices in the Alumni Headquarters, Belknap Campus, has been appointed, with power to supervise and advise in all matters, both social and business, pertaining to the Alumni Association. From this office is issued the Alumni Bulletin, a magazine published quarterly each year in the interest of the alumni and of the university. In this office are held the business and social meetings of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association, as well as similar meetings of individual councils representing the various schools in the university. In this office are held meetings of the Alumni Players, the Alumni Reading Club, and the Alumni Chemistry Club. In fact, the Alumni Headquarters have become a clearing house for all alumni affairs.

The Board of Directors of the Alumni Association is made up as follows:

Herbert F. Boehl, President, School of Law
Dr. J. Garland Sherrill, Vice-President, School of Medicine
Dr. W. W. Rivers, Vice-President, School of Dentistry
Mrs. Robert L. Johnston, Vice-President, College of Liberal Arts
W. Pratt Dale, Vice-President, School of Law
John E. Heller, Secretary, College of Liberal Arts
Huston Quin, Treasurer, School of Law
Dr. John T. O'Rourke, Director, School of Dentistry
Leonard C. Brecher, Director, College of Liberal Arts

To the graduates of the class of 1928 is extended a cordial invitation to become an integral part of this Alumni Association, to be alumni not only in name, and to realize to the fullest the joys that active participation in alumni work invariably bestows. Great things are expected from our Alumni Association, for united in heart and desire, as well as in mere physical organization, by that enthusiasm, that interest, that earnestness of purpose that has always characterized the alumni of the University of Louisville, our attainments should know no bounds.

IDEAS mixed with ink create Good Printing. With the vivacity of a living thing, this printing that sells finds its reader, whether he sits in the circle of illumination from the library lamp or frowns thru business problems in the harsh noon-light at his desk, and leads him unresistingly down Purchaser's Row.

There, with fresh, vivid impression, he sees your product as it is, becomes conscious of the personality of your goods and finds that personality desirable.

Good Printing is salesmanship plus. And the plus represents typographic art.

LOUIS GOLDBERG

Everybody knows Louis, the popular manager of GOLDBERG'S, Louisville's Leading Taillors and Ready-to-Wear Clothiers at Fourth and Market Streets.

"Louis" (as he is popularly called) has about as many friends as the next one at the U. of L. Campus, judging from the way they come in to GOLDBERG'S, Fourth and Market Streets, to see him, as he has for many years been a booster for better athletics and University of Louisville.

Mr. Goldberg has a gigantic personal following and he extends a personal welcome to his many friends and acquaintances to meet him in person for their new suit at GOLDBERG'S, Fourth and Market Streets.

Use this CORONA FOUR in your office

IT IS the latest and most convenient form of office typewriter. We believe that it will entirely replace the heavy type of machine because of its greater convenience and lower cost. This Corona has:

Standard (4 row) Keyboard
Standard (12 yard) Ribbon
Standard (10 inch) Carriage

It writes more visibly than other typewriters. Its accelerating type-bar action gives it marvelous speed and lightness of touch.

Phone and let us send one to you for examination.
